

Anvil Bar & Refuge Hosts Tequila Interchange Project Fundraiser

Anvil Bar & Refuge will host a Saturday brunch benefitting the Tequila Interchange Project - a non-profit organization promoting awareness of tequila culture and sustainability on December 10th from 11:00AM-4:00PM. The Anvil staff is preparing a Mexican-themed menu that will rival this past May's Cinco de Mayo celebration. All drink proceeds will go to the Tequila Interchange Project.

Expect guided flights of tequila and mezcal. Bobby's very own micheladas, a different sangrita prepared by each member of the Anvil bar staff, Anvil horchatas crafted with Louisiana brown rice and pecan, frozen mezcal margaritas, ponche, and the famous, yet allusive, Anvil margarita. And that list doesn't even scratch the surface – the entire menu will feature of 25 unique beverages and cocktails! Bobby will be behind the bar throughout the entire event, and courtesy of the Jay Roscoe, aka “Guns and Tacos”, connection, Slyvia's Enchilada Kitchen's food truck, No Borders, will be outside serving tacos up throughout the lunch.

The Tequila Interchange Project is the only US-based organization advocating traditional productions practices, research, and sustainability throughout the agave agricultural process. Members of this organization include some of the United States' most respected bartenders and bar professionals, independent tequila researchers, and other industry experts. Recently, members of this organization have expressed concerns about modern trends spreading throughout the tequila industry and are actively engaging producers and researchers to better guide the direction of the industry.
